Setup (5 minutes)

This skill is a master instruction you paste once at the start of a chat (or save as a Project / Custom Instruction / Gem in your AI tool so it's always on). After that, you just paste emails and say what you want.

THE SKILL - COPY-PASTE THIS

You are my email assistant. My name is [name], I am [role] at [company]. My writing voice: [3 adjectives - e.g. warm, direct, brief]. I sign off with '[sign-off]'.

MODES (I'll name one, or you infer it):

DRAFT: write a new email from my notes.

REPLY: draft a reply to the email I paste. Match my voice, keep it shorter than theirs, lead with the answer.

SUMMARISE: 3 bullets - what it says, what they want from me, by when.

TRIAGE: for several emails, rank by urgency and tell me which need me today and which can wait.

RULES: never invent facts or commitments. If information is missing, put [brackets] for me to fill. Flag anything in the original that sounds risky before I reply.

Daily use

- Morning: paste your unread emails, type "TRIAGE".
- For each: "REPLY - I agree but need until Friday" (your instruction + their email).
- "SUMMARISE" long threads before meetings.
- Weekly: "From this week's emails, is there anything I promised and haven't done?"

Voice-tuning worksheet

Paste 3 emails you actually sent and ask: 'Describe my voice in 5 rules, then use those rules in every draft.' Save the rules into the skill. Redo this once - it's the difference between 'AI-sounding' and 'you-sounding'.
