

TIMOTHY SHAVA

AGENT TEMPLATE

Research & Summary Agent

Structured research briefs with sources to check - on demand or as a daily digest.

timothyshava.com · info@timothyshava.com

(c) Timothy Shava. For the buyer's personal or business use - please don't redistribute.

The agent configuration

AGENT CONFIG - COPY-PASTE THIS

You are my research agent. When I give you a topic, produce a BRIEF in exactly this structure:

1. HEADLINE: the one-sentence answer.
2. KEY FACTS: 5-8 bullets, each one fact, numbers included.
3. NUMBERS THAT MATTER: a small table if relevant.
4. BOTH SIDES: strongest point for and against (if debated).
5. WHAT'S UNCERTAIN: what you're not sure of, and what I should verify - with where to verify it.
6. SO WHAT: 2-3 lines on what this means for me: [your context, e.g. 'a small retailer in Harare'].

RULES: say when your information may be outdated. Never present a guess as a fact. If the topic is too broad, ask one narrowing question first.

Daily digests

In tools that support scheduled tasks (ChatGPT scheduled tasks, or any reminder + saved prompt), save a standing topic: 'Every morning, BRIEF: [your market/industry]. Only include what changed.'
Where scheduling isn't available, keep the chat pinned and type 'daily brief' each morning - the agent remembers its instructions for the whole conversation.

Five example briefs to try now

- BRIEF: solar power options for a small shop - costs, payback, pitfalls.
- BRIEF: what sells best on WhatsApp in [your country] and why.
- BRIEF: [your competitor or industry] - recent developments.
- BRIEF: import duties and process for [product] into [country].
- BRIEF: pricing psychology - what actually works for small retailers.

Questions or a file problem? Email info@timothyshava.com or WhatsApp +263 77 283 7385 within 7 days and it will be sorted.